

SPE Aberdeen 3rd Inwell Flow Surveillance & Control Seminar 3 October 2017, AECC

“Delivering Surveillance Solutions & Driving Well Performance through Flow Control”

Sponsorship and Exhibitor Opportunities

SPE Aberdeen’s 3rd Inwell Flow Surveillance and Control Seminar will explore advances in reservoir surveillance and flow control in the oil and gas industry. This year, the conference agenda will be driven by Operators, service companies, supply chain and academia.

In these challenging times, it’s vital that as an industry, we work together. A not-for-profit conference, all surplus funds get reinvested to fund and encourage the next generation of STEM inspired employees, by sparking young people’s interest in the energy industry. It’s vital that we continue to do this and we are asking for your support to help play a part in developing our industry’s future.

It’s also vital that as an industry, we continue to provide cost effective training and development opportunities for employees and for those who have recently been made redundant.

Why support the Conference?

- Being involved in the Conference will ensure that you receive an unmatched level of brand recognition for your company in front of an audience of industry peers.
- You will directly be helping to support our future young engineers as all surplus funds get reinvested
- At a time where internal multi-vendor workshops have been reduced, the conference is a great opportunity for engineers to absorb much of what the industry has to offer in one large room.
- It could meet the training needs for at a time when technical training has generally been reined-back. If you look at the cost of technical training in general, the sponsorship fee is very good value for money
- The conference energises & inspires engineers, and allows them space to think about technical challenges, then discuss these with the vendors & speakers
- For any engineer that presents, this is a great opportunity for personal development within your company and provides great promotion, exposure and recognition
- Receive free or discounted places for engineers.

There are various sponsorship and exhibition opportunities available at this popular conference. Please see reverse for further details.
